

DIRECTORS & OFFICERS

Company leaders need cover with industry experts.

As a company director or officer, when things go wrong there's so much more than simply your position on the line. The Companies Act imposes personal liability for breach of duty, which means anyone can sue a company director or officer in their personal capacity for actual or alleged breach of fiduciary duties. You may be held personally, jointly and severally liable for any loss, damages or costs sustained by your company or any other stakeholder because of your decisions and actions. At iTOO we fully comprehend the personal severity of these kinds of claims. If the buck stops with you, make sure your bucks are covered by an expert.
